HOBOTOURS 2020

Lost from most tourist adverts is any mention of a temple that is way out in the eastern suburbs of Bangkok Proper in an area better known for it's massive Thai version of the 1990's Mall of America and even fewer tourists will ever see.

HOBOTOURS 2020

Even people who have by some odd chance might recall hearing about it in some unrelated conversation most certainty don't have a clue on it's history and (if asked) will get you stone-cold lost getting there.

Like hundreds of local venues that never make the "TOP 20" Temple

HOBO TOURS 2020

Tour Promos little-a-lone find a viral Yoube-Tubba Video on it...

So, you might be too quick to write this off your pre-packaged MUST see, bucket list and I am here to drop a dime on why you should might want to take a chance on a (almost) off-the-radar adventure

out into the urban wilderness of this massive, sociological classic “Super City Complex.”

To be truthful and in my attempt towards talking to the truth; I only discovered this hidden gem because of a family member's funeral and a few hours to kill between paying respect and the cremation ceremony.

HOBO TOURS 2020

Nice little place well down a dusty soi (a little side street that I can't recall it's proper name...I forgot to ask) off the main road over to "Fashion Island" Super Mall and up a creaky old bridge over a small river (canal) and I am sure (but didn't ask) Grandma's house would be found nearby...

HOBO TOURS 2020

While there might not be a wide array of “touristy” MUST take photo ops waiting to greet the brave adventurer; there is a nice vibe of peacefulness that has long since vanished from the majority of this new age’s more commercialized temples as tourist destinations on the local Zero Baht Tour(s) Circuit.

HOBOTOURS 2020

No entrance fees, no touts yelling out to you “Where you from?” as you walk in the front gate and no need to glance over to the interesting gift shop (with NO PHOTO!!! Signs randomly posted up on ever free surfaces in multiple languages... well...OK! In English and Chinese)as there isn't one.

HOBO TOURS 2020

No rent-a-cops here to follow me around like I was a world famous gangster about to heist their Golden Buddha and the few people around are friendly in a almost Korean-style of totally ignoring you. There were not enough merchants and money handers about that even Jesus would have got upset by.

HOBO TOURS 2020

As I said, I had several hours to walk around a chillout between the “Showing Respect” to the actual cremation ceremony and Utilized my snooliest “Dora The Explorer” skillset to my fullest ability until it started to rain again..

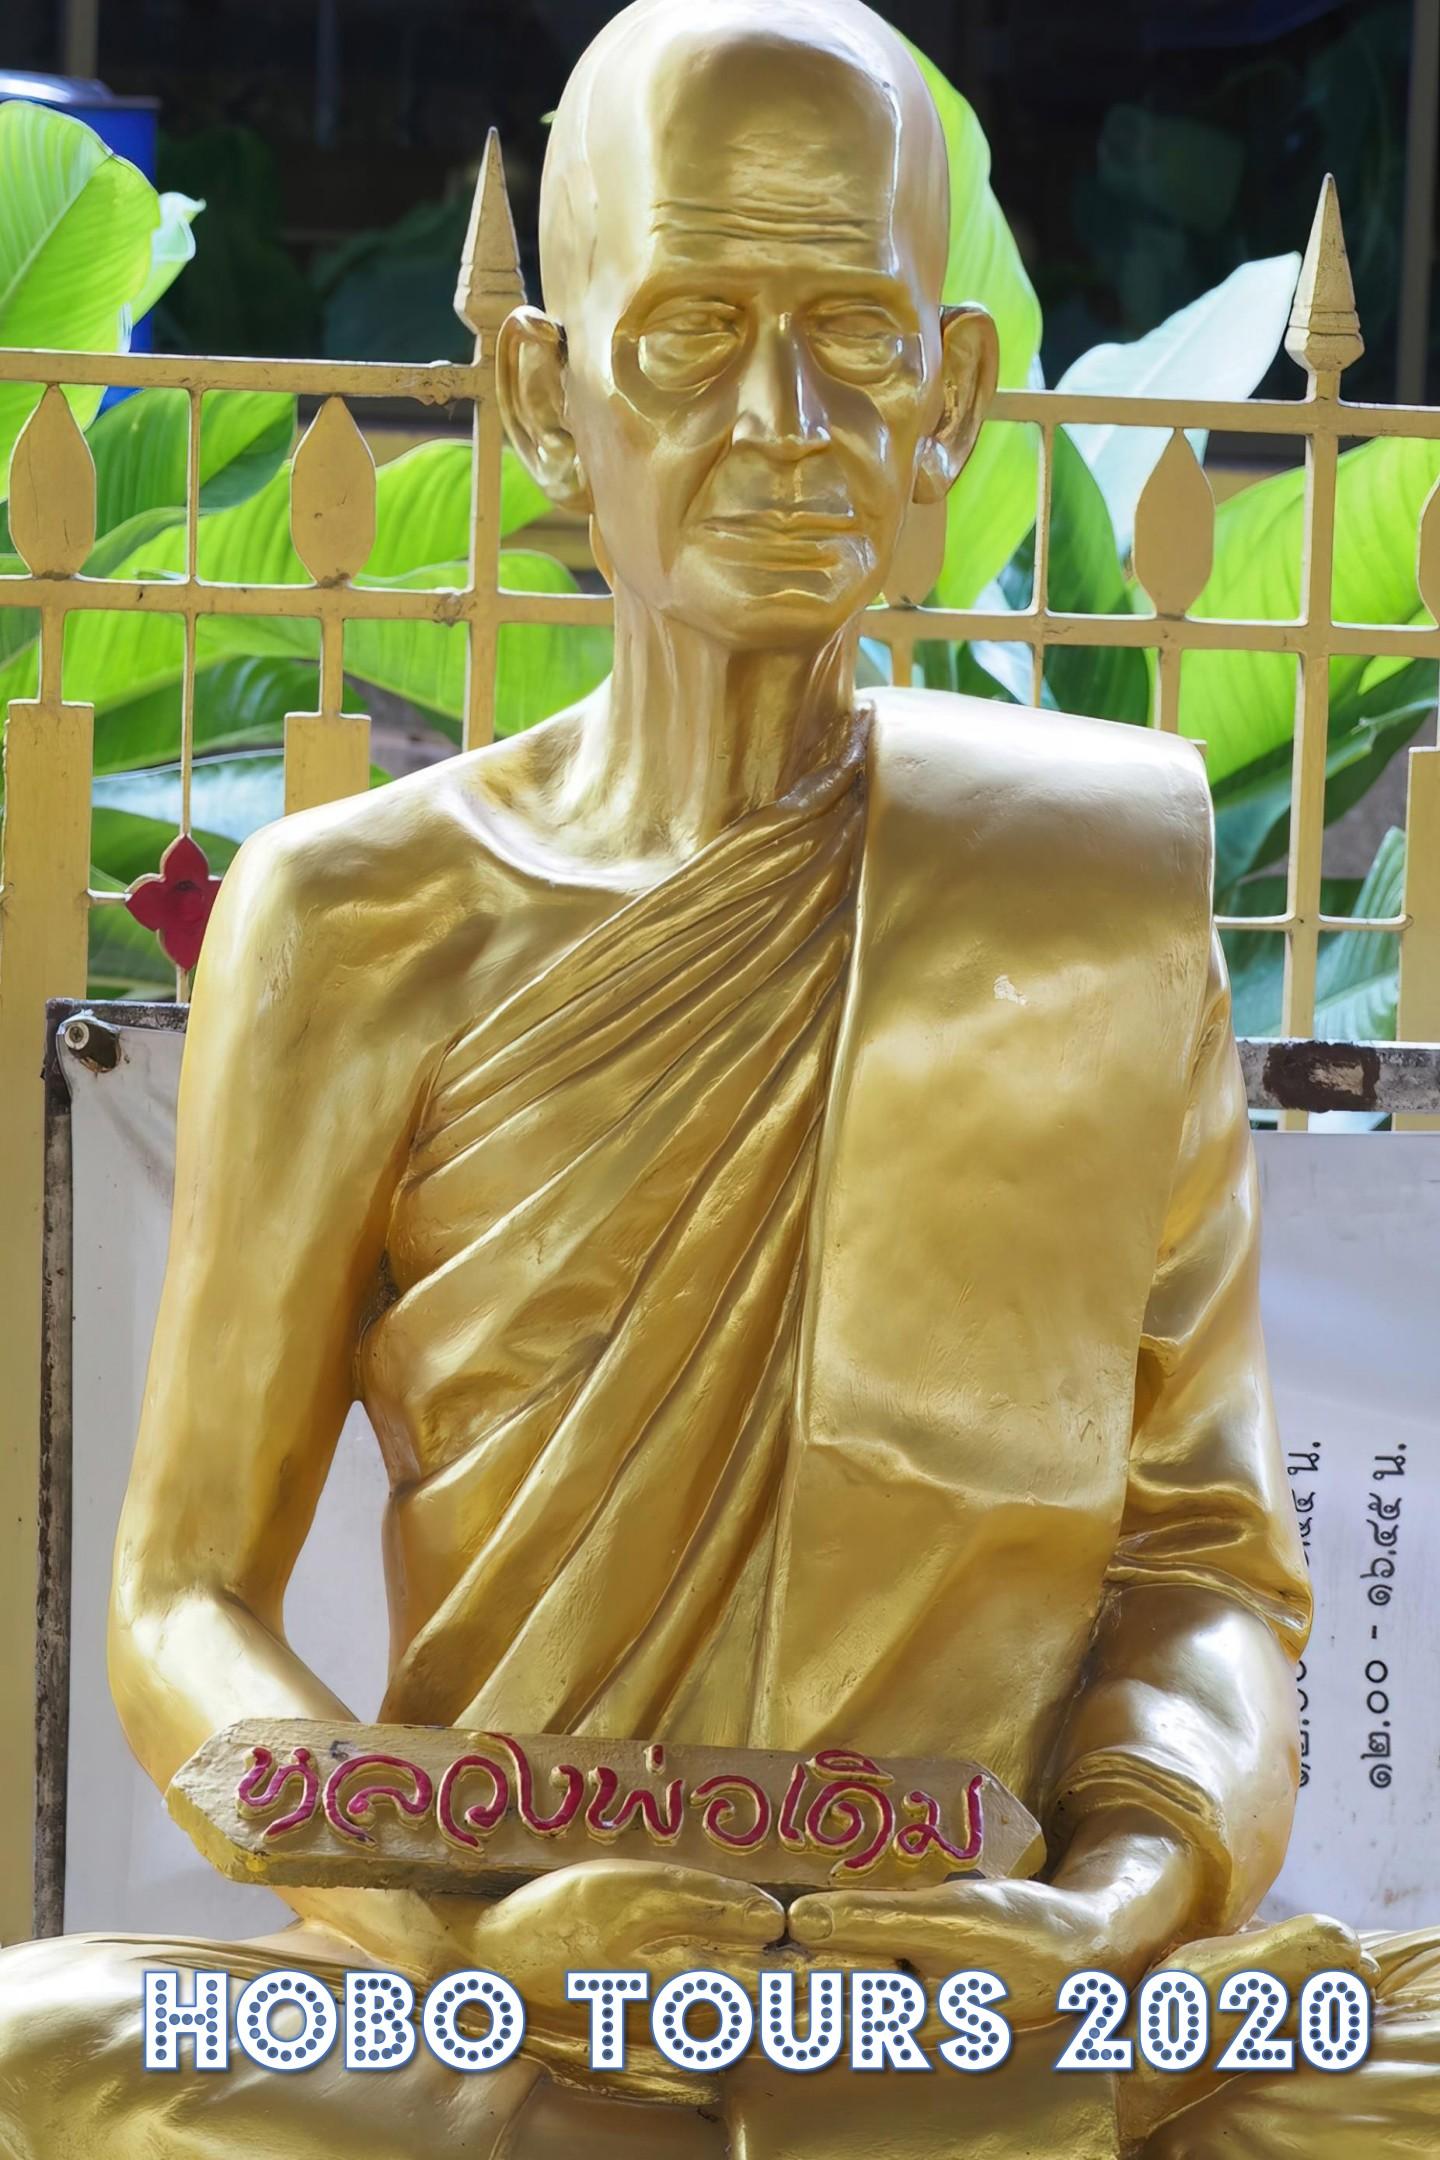

Thank goodness I have an Olympus Camera as it's gratefully waterproof!

The background of the poster features a traditional East Asian woodblock-style illustration. On the left, a large, stylized dragon with a textured, scaly body and a long, swirling tail is depicted. Its head is turned back, showing a fierce expression with a wide mouth and sharp teeth. To the right of the dragon, there is a dense arrangement of various plants and flowers, including what appear to be peacock feathers, lotus buds, and other intricate foliage. The colors used are a monochromatic palette of dark blues, blacks, and light beige or cream, giving it a classic, aged appearance.

A close-up photograph of a weathered, dark-colored statue of a man's head and shoulders. The statue has a wrinkled forehead, a prominent nose, and thin lips. It appears to be made of a material like bronze or dark stone. The background is a solid, bright red. The statue is positioned on a surface that looks like a textured, light-colored material, possibly concrete or a painted surface.

GREETINGS COMRADE CAMPERS!

"Truly, is this not our purpose in life to crest this hill, return to the beaches and set torch to our ships before marching inland with Cortes... You can never go back... Tom Wolfe was so correct... Always, we must decide to march off forward, Never can we retreat into the safe comfort of our past... Live for today... Live in this very moment, the past is dust and if you continue to live in that graveyard, you can have no future..."

She finished with a rather odd observation:
